COURSE DESCRIPTION

The M.A. Education program in ODL mode is designed for learners who want to build advanced understanding of teaching methods, learner psychology, curriculum development, and educational management through self-directed study. The course focuses on improving professional knowledge and academic skills required in teaching and training environments.

Students learn through structured self-learning materials provided in printed and digital formats, supported by academic counseling and study center services as per university norms. This mode is suitable for in-service teachers, education professionals, and graduates preparing for teaching eligibility or academic advancement.
